PROVEN HOSPITALITY ATTORNEYS

San Diego is a city built on hospitality, with tourism accounting for over 10 percent of the region's economy and hospitality as one of the city's top revenue generators.

In our 80-year history, we have proudly worked with some of San Diego's top hospitality and retail companies, helping them to sustain and grow their businesses. We have significant understanding, experience, and expertise in this space, and partner with each of our clients to not only meet their legal need, but in protecting their business assets.

The attorneys who comprise HFM's Hospitality & Retail law practice group have a substantial breadth of experience in all aspects of law related to hospitality and retail, including corporate, employment, real estate, intellectual property, and immigration. We have a proven track record of ensuring hotels, restaurants, and tourism-based businesses thrive, with HFM attorneys aiding in growth by advising on operational issues, planning for development and expansion, and counseling clients on how to minimize risk.

From our home base in San Diego, California, we represent clients locally and nationally, including craft breweries, parks, racetracks, and other tourist destinations throughout California and the U.S.
